Unusual Resemblances.

It is a matter of common knowledge that when a husband and wife have lived together for a long period they not only acquire the same tricks of voice and manner, but they show a strong facial resemblance, so that they might easily be taken for brother and sister. Almost every one has at least one such instance among his acquaintances. But it is perhaps a less well known fact that a summer resemblance often results from a mistress and servant being associated together for a long period of years. Added to the fact of constant nearness there is usually on the part of the servant a desire to imitate the voice and manner of the mistress she so much admires. And this often ex- monds they would find. tends to the facial resemblance. There are in a small provincial town of New England two most unusual instances of this resemblance. Two maiden ladies live there, each of whom has been attended for the greater part of fifty years by a woman who is more a companion than a servant. In both cases the women have become so astonishingly like their mistresses that they are often mistaken for them. And their voices over the telephone are so exactly alike that the friends of both ladies have given up this means of communication with them because of embarrassing mis-

Passage of the First Law in the World Due to Efforts of an Irishman. The first law in the world for the prevention of cruelty to animals we owe to Ireland; a famous English nobleman attempted to obtain a law, and was made so much fun of that he backed out and gave it up in despair; then there came into the House of Commons from Galway, on the west coast of Ireland, Dick Martin, whe was noted for two things: First, he was very fond of animals, and second, he was very fond of fighting everybody whom he thought had insulted himon that point he had a well-established reputation. So one day he brought a bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Some one gave a cock crow; Martin stepped out at once on to the floor of the House of Commons and said he would be very much obliged for the name of the gentleman who had seen fit to insult him. The gentleman didn't give his name, and Martin, after waiting a minute, went back to his seat amid the cheers of the House of Commons, and his law was enacted and secame the first law in the world for the prevention of cruelty to animals.-Our Dumb Animals.

modern taxicabs. Whether American automobile manufacturers will secure the order for these motors is problematical, but the that it marks a further development

For several years in Singapore there has been a most consistent and Most of this agitation came from the tongue and pen of the educated Chimaking a horse out of men is wrong from the standpoint of the degrading influence which it has on the individuals as well as the harm it is claimed to work upon the coolles. Distances are great in most far Eastern cities, and while the rickshaw makes transportation reasonably convenient and comfertable, the rickshaw most certainly is a primitive vehicle and doomed to early abandonment because of the rapid advance now being made in the industrial and social life of the far East. The new company to operate in Singapore is to be officially known as the Singapore Metor Taxicab and Transport company, Ltd., and will have capital of $350,000. #### HIGH PRICES FOR DIAMONDS Value of the Highly Desired Sparklers

Singapore has a population of 300,000.

Has Been Soaring to Unheard-of Heights. The economic situation of the world at large is said by jewelers to be more responsible for the present high prices of diamonds than any shortage of diamonds in the South African mines or any manipulation of the output by the De Beers Blamond company. The following figures concerning diamond prices were obtained from Antwerp, the European center of the dismond market. An uncut diamond before the war cost $23 a carst and $32 after cutting. Immediately after the declaration of war, the price slumped. In 1975 the Germans began to get nervous regarding the value of paper money and started buying all the dis-France, Switzerland, Italy and Eng land followed suit and the price went up rapidly. On the eve of the armistice, an uncut carat diamond was worth $70. Since the war ended, the diamond market has beemed, owing to the depreciation of European money. the difficulty of exchange and the embargo on the export of currency from one European nation to another. Te-day a carat of uneut stone finds a ready market at $150. The Antwerp merchants no longer seek customers. The market a swamped with buyers. Credit is no longer given. The sales are for cash. The buyer frequently resells and the new purchaser sells again at fat profits. Thus the price keeps going up. Large stones are snapped up at unheard of prices.

The Kaiser's Kitchen. In what is destined to be the last stage of its travels, the field kitchen of William Hohenzollern, which had fellowed the former Kaiser in all his wanderings about Europe during the war, is on its way to the United States. As if to give the changing of hands a more significant aspect, German prisoners of war were requisitioned to load the field kitchen-with all its elaborate accessories-abeard the westbound transport at St. Nazaire. The portable "kochenhaus" shows no sign of the wear and tear of war, indicating a certain remoteness to the battle Front of all connected with the once imperial suite. The trophy, it is intended, shall be added to a netable collection of war relies at the American capital; whether it is to be utilized in the ways approved other matter. Dreadful Threat. "Late again?" cried the trate moving picture director to the members of his company. "Do you actors think that you can stroll into the studie at half-past ten every morning and get away with it? This isn't a national bank. But, by humphrey, I'll get even with you! Tomorrow we start filming that Alpine drams with the fog and cloud effects. Report at the old quarry at 4:30 a. m. You are all going to be shot at sunrise every morning for a week." Being shot at sunrise is harder hardship for a mevic actor
